Thick Walls of Water ... Winter Surfing the Sussex County Shores

We all wonder about those surfers out there in even the coldest weather trying to catch the perfect wave.

High Tide News had the pleasure of speaking with a local surfer and discovering the reason they are out there in the ocean on the coldest of winter days... as long as the waves are big enough you will find a surfer out there!

Derek Tetzner of Lewes tells us a little bit about his own surfing experiences and his love for the ocean. Derek has lived in Delaware his entire life, born in Dover and moved to Lewes as a teenager. Derek started surfing at age

13. He was one of those kids who was always either bodyboarding, or skimboarding. Derek's father was by far his biggest influence as far as surfing. He has surfed up and down the East coast: Canada, California, the Bahamas, El Salvador, Costa Rico, Mexico, and Puerto Rico.

When asked: "Is surfing a passion for the ocean or just for the thrill of the ride?" Derek replied with: "I feel as if it's a combination. It's our passion for the water and surfing that makes us want to find that thrilling ride."

Derek recently graduated college with a B.S. in biology from Washington College and is now assistant manager at East of Maui surf shop with locations in Dewey Beach and Lewes. Some of the great moments in Derek's surfing career has been all the traveling with family and friends.

Surfing looks dangerous when you're watching from the beach. Derek says it can be dangerous depending on the conditions and your skill level. If you ask any

- A business owner consistently sells used or outdated products or services as "new."
- An investor wants 80% ownership for putting cash into a startup venture – an amount that's just a tiny fraction of what the entrepreneur has already put into the business.
- A professional practice partner recruited with promises to function in her area of specialization ends up being pushed into other tasks through a contract loophole.

- A business partner accepts responsibility for operations, but instead spends fulltime efforts in sales which he knows nothing about.
- The boss repeatedly argues with irate customers, instead of simply granting their requests.
- The verbally-agreed-to partnership is tossed overboard when one of the founders gets an investor and dismisses the prior partner relationship to form a 50/50 split with the investor.

- A business owner refuses to provide growth opportunities for entry-level employees because increasing their responsibilities will force increased compensation packages.

Integrity means keeping your promises. It means standing up for what you believe in no matter the cost. It means behaving honorably in the face of temptation to be dishonorable.

HOW TO CUT YOUR HEATING BILL IN HALF WITHOUT BREAKING THE BANK

If you are in Sussex County Delaware you are most likely heating your home with propane or kerosene oil. Natural gas is still rare in Sussex County making it very expensive to heat your home Sussex County. Figuring out how much money you are spending to heat your home can be hard to do. You may be heating your water and cooking and drying your clothes with the same fuel. Finding out the exact amount of fuel you are using to heat your home is very important in determining how much money you can actually save by cutting your heating bill in half.

Heat pump's have been given a bad name in the past because a heat pump gives cooler air the colder it is outside. So using a heat pump in warmer winter days you don't feel any difference in the air coming out of your heating vents. Sussex County is a great place for heat pumps because of the very affordable price of electricity. In places where electricity is expensive, heat pumps are not so great. The temperature in Sussex County is over 40 degrees more than half of the winter.

The price of electricity and the temperature range in Sussex County makes it the perfect place for what is called the hybrid or dual fuel heating system. A hybrid is a gas furnace and a heat pump combined together. When the temperature is 40 degrees or greater the heat pump is heating your home and when it's 39 degrees or less the gas furnace is heating your home so you don't feel any difference in comfort. The thermostat controls this with a outside temperature sensor. A heat pump in Sussex County cost 4 times less to heat with than a propane or oil heater does. You can add a heat pump to any type of fuel heater no matter the age of the heater. Using propane or kerosene half the time and a heat pump the other half of the winter is how you can cut your heating bill in half.

Hangin' out with Ex-Pats

By High Tide News' contributing writer Vincent Paez

Ex-Pat stands for Ex-Patriot, which is a citizen who lives abroad. I was an Ex-Pat when I lived in Germany for several years. The Ex-Pat crowd is unique in that they have experiences that an average citizen does not. Visiting a foreign country is one thing. Living there and dealing with the local customs, food, and laws is quite another thing. A simple task, like taking a taxi or putting out the garbage, can take on unexpected difficulties. An ex-pat tends to especially appreciate meeting a fellow American while abroad. A few weeks ago, I had the pleasure of meeting a number of ex-pats in China, who really know how to enjoy life.

One of my closest friends is a high school science teacher at the American School in Shanghai. Most of the teachers are American and many of them live near each other in the same very nice complex. Next to the neighborhood is a bar, which serves as the local hang-out for the teachers. Several of the educators have formed a band and play there regularly. One night, while visiting my friend, we decided to visit the bar and see this band.

Shanghai or Ireland?

When we walked into the bar, I felt like I had never left the USA. It had the look and feel of an Irish pub, and almost all the patrons were American teachers and their spouses. In fact, the only Chinese people were the bartenders. The band was playing typical rock music, and it was clear that they were very good musicians. The guitar lead was spot on, the drummer was keeping a perfect beat, and the singer had a beautiful voice. I took advantage of their break and went to the stage to introduce myself. I learned that the singer, a kindergarten teacher, was from Detroit, the guitarist, a chemistry teacher, was from California, and the rest of the band was from various parts of the USA.

I felt bold enough to ask the leader if they ever have guest singers, to which he replied, "Do you currently play with a band?"

"Well," I responded, "my band days are over, but I used to have a band, and I sit in with some bands in Ocean City, Maryland."

The leader looked surprised and said, "I know Ocean City. I went there as a kid and had a great time! Hey, c'mon up in a couple of songs and let's see how it goes."

After a few songs, the band called me up on stage to sing Sweet Home Alabama, and I believe they were genuinely pleased with my singing. They asked me to sing two more songs. At the end of the evening, I had chatted with many of the teachers and their spouses. I felt like I had made new friends. My close friend and I decided to head back to his house. As we left, I was feeling like we were leaving a bar in Anywhere, USA, when I looked up and realized that I wasn't anywhere near my home country.

The air was so very smoggy, that I could feel the dirt from the air on my face. The taxi drivers swarmed the street following no real traffic pattern. The outside of the bar looked old and there was a lot of litter on the ground. And the many Chinese faces of the people on bicycles going in and out of traffic, reminded me where I was. That bar made me feel like I went into a black hole in space and traveled to the USA for just a few hours, and then back to Shanghai.

I typically meet interesting locals, while I travel abroad. This trip was particularly interesting, because I saw of my fellow Americans live in a country whose culture is very different from ours. All in all, they seem to have adjusted quite well. I can really understand why Chinese (or people of any other culture) who live here in the USA enjoy each other's company. When I see a foreigner living here, I try to think of some of the challenges they have, just as my fellow Americans had in Shanghai.

Winter Surfing

experienced surfer they would probably laugh at this question. But, if the right conditions are there, surfing can be dangerous just like any other sport. Especially in the summer time when there are tons of people who don't know surfing etiquette or how to control their boards.

In Derek's own words, "I've got the surfing bug. It's hard to explain to someone who doesn't surf, one way to put it is I just love to surf."

"Many locals in the area live for winter, the swells are bigger and the crowds are slimmer."

"Plus wetsuit technology has come so far it's pretty easy to surf year round."

Working at a surf shop and having the surfing bug goes hand in hand!

Hopefully the future holds a lot of traveling and catching some good waves.
